A Prayer for Kingdom Warriors · 100-Day Fast

O Lord God of Ancient Fire and Unending Glory.

Father, El Shaddai, the All-Sufficient One, the God who split the sea and shook the mountain, whose voice is as thunder over many waters and whose very breath forms worlds out of nothing — I come before You undone.

I come not in my own strength, not adorned in my own righteousness, not standing on the merit of my own works. I come stripped, fasted, emptied — a hollow vessel lifted toward the heavens, crying out with everything within me:

Pour the Ancient Oil of Your Glory on me.

Lord, You poured that oil upon Aaron in the wilderness, running down his beard and the hem of his garment, the oil of consecration, of separation, of holy purpose. You poured it upon David as a boy in the fields, and something ancient and royal leaped into his bloodstream. You poured it at Pentecost like a flood, tongues of fire, wind like a rushing army, and ordinary men became extraordinary vessels of the living God.

That same oil, O God, the oil that has never run dry, the oil that existed before time, the oil of Your very presence and majesty, I am crying out for it NOW. Pour it over me, Holy Spirit. Let it soak into my crown, saturate my mind, flood the chambers of my heart, run through my hands, anoint the very soles of my feet.

Prepare me for greater intercession.

God of Elijah, who prayed and shut up heaven. God of Daniel who fasted and split the veil between the seen and unseen. God of Esther, who stood in the gap for a generation, I hear the call echoing in my spirit: You are raising up intercessors for this hour.

Lord, make me one of them. Tear down every wall of prayerlessness within me. Demolish the laziness, the distraction, the shallow religion that only skims the surface of prayer. I want to go DEEP with You, into the depths of intercession where travail is born, where nations are turned, where the chains of hell are shattered.

Teach me, Holy Spirit, to pray with groanings that cannot be uttered. Teach me to stand in the gap without wavering. Teach me to hold the line in the spirit even when my flesh grows weary, even when darkness presses hard, even when the answer tarries.

Let the ancient fire fall, Lord. Let it fall on me.

Consume every impurity that would hinder my prayers from rising as sweet incense before Your throne. Burn away every selfish motive, every double mind, every hidden idol that competes for the altar of my heart. I want a clean heart, O God — a heart that burns only for Your Kingdom, Your glory, Your will on this earth.

Father, I have set myself apart as a Kingdom Warrior, a consecrated soldier who refuses to yield, a watchman who will not be silent, a warrior who has heard the call to position and prepare myself for the pouring of the ancient oil on the remnant. Lord, as I fast and consecrate, cover me with Your glory as a canopy. Let my prayers become a war cry that resounds through the heavens and sends a supernatural signal from my heart to yours, that I am ready to receive the oil of the new era.

Use me, Lord. Use us. Shake the nations.

Let this fast not become another ritualistic fast where I abstain from food but do not press into the depths of your presence. But Lord, as I fast and spend time in your presence, start a holy revolution within me. Break me open, make room, and prepare me to receive all heaven has for me. Let revival rain upon my dry bones. Let purpose and power rise within me in a new way. Let familiar spirits and powers of darkness that have held me in hostile environments be bound and cast down by the force of this intercession. Lord, I am ready to be saturated in Your ancient oil of glory.

I surrender my schedule, my appetite, my comfort, my preferences, and I lay them on the altar as a living sacrifice. Let my emptiness become Your fullness. Let my hunger become holy desperation. Let this fast mark me as one ready to receive the pour of your holy ancient oil. Brand me by Your fire, drenched me in the oil, and commission me for the greater works You have planned for the Remnant Army.

*In the matchless, mighty, undefeated Name of Jesus Christ — King of Kings, Lord of Lords, the Ancient of Days who reigns forever —
Amen. So let it be written in heaven.*
